- Talk to your HCP about how to prepare for your infusion appointment. You could ask during a visit with your HCP, call their office, or reach out to them through your HCP's patient portal. Your HCP may have suggestions for things to consider as you prepare, including:
 - Ways to stay hydrated.
 - What to wear to be comfortable during the infusion process.
 - What extra time you may need before and after your infusion.
 - Bringing a list of your medications and vaccinations.
- Pack an infusion appointment bag.
 - Think about what you can do to stay entertained during the infusion process and the observation period following each infusion. Consider what you'd like to do to pass the time (read, solve puzzles, play games on your phone, listen to some music, or watch a TV show/movie you downloaded ahead of time).
 - Add to your bag anything that might make you more comfortable, like a light blanket in case it's chilly or a water bottle or snacks.

Your OCC will be reaching out during your treatment cycle to check in. We are always here to listen to you about how things are going!

AFTER YOUR FIRST TREATMENT:

- Your HCP and infusion team will let you know what to monitor following your infusions. If you have any concerns after treatment, follow the instructions provided or reach out to your HCP.
